BEHIND THE SILENT WIRES. Terrible Elements of Danger in the Turkish Situation-Rule of the Soldlery?

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, April 17.-The truth about the situation in Turkey lies concealed behind the silent wires from Salonica and Adrianople. It rests with the great bodies of troops stationed at those points whether the country will be devastated by one of the most savage civil wars of modern times.

We hear circumstantial reports to-day that 200,000 men are marching on Constantinople and that the first attack will be made to-night. This is nonsense. It would require nearly a month to mass such a body of troops within striking distance of the capital even if the Government did nothing to prevent it and the whole European army in the provinces were willing to undertake such a move-

It must be admitted that the crisis is very alarming and that considerable bloodshed is more than probable, though this is not likely to take the form of a pitched battle in the streets of Constantinople. It is true that all power in Turkey now rests in the hands of the military not the officers, but the rank and fileand the peril of such a situation is obvious remembered how ignorant fanatical and irresponsible is the Turkish

In considering how this terrible power is likely to be used it is necessary to examine anew the intrigues which made last Tuesday's revolt possible and successful. The troops who swept the Government from power are men of identical sympathies with those who are now expected to march against them. They supported wholeheartedly the revolution of July. It is the Committee of Union and Progress which has changed in personnel and policy since then, not the soldiers who put the committee in power The new leaders who during their exile became imbued with Western ideas made the fatal mistake of not taking due account of the fundamental religious fanaticism of their countrymen and so placed in the hands of their enemies the weapon for their undoing. History has repeated itself. The extreme reactionists and the extreme constitutionalists combined and made joint use of the instrument which alone could overthrow the new regime.

It is repeatedly asserted that the Sultan was the master mind which created the combination and that Tuesday's revolt was but the first step in his plan for regaining absolute power. There may be some truth in this. It is true, at all events, that the plausible assertion that the new authorities were undermining the foundations of the Moslem faith was quite sufficient to incite wholesale mutiny, and so it will always be with the Mohammedan population, military or civilian. It is not that they love constitutional liberty less, but that the Moslem faith is always the supreme consideration

Furthermore it is men, not measures which count most with the Turkish soldiery: They have absolute confidence in Nazim Pasha, the new commander of the Constantinople garrison, who is an ardent constitutionalist. He has it in his power to make an agreement with the leaders of the Committee of Union and Progress at Salonica, and the result would be the complete unification of the Constantinople troops with the First and Third Army Corps in support of the con-

Civil war, when such an understanding so feasible, seems absurd. Reports from Constantinople already affirm that suspicion is taking root among Tuesday's mutineers that they have been humbugged and they are expressing aversion at being induced to play a political role. But while it would seem to be easy to avoid civil war, other dangers have arisen which may well arouse general appre-

Appeals to religious passions have already spread through the country. They may be mitigated at their source, but not so throughout the still more fanatical provinces. Grave reports of massacres of Christians are already pouring in, and these are likely to increase. Albania is in revolt and is demanding autonomy. The ambitious and unscrupulous Czar Ferdinand thinks he sees Bulgaria's opportunity in Macedonia. The sandiak of Novibazar is in a ferment and a general Balkan movement where a settlement was assured a week ago is threatened anew. There is no sign yet that any foreign power had any preknowledge or participation in the Turkish revolt, but all show evidence of deep concern in the possibilities of the situation. The British Ambassador at St. Petersburg had a long consultation with the Czar vesterday regarding the cooperation of Russia and England in case it becomes necessary to protect foreigners, and the British fleet at Malta has been ordered to be in instant readiness to sail. Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Secretary, and M. Pichon the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, have returned to their posts from their Easter holidays, and every preparation is being made for all eventualities.

The necessity for foreign interference would come at a peculiarly awkward moment. Austro-German ambition in the direction of Salonica is the bugbear of the situation. Any paralysis of Turkey by internal dissension would create a rare opportunity which would hardly be allowed to slip. Russia, after her humiliation three weeks ago by Germany, would remain impotent. France feels that she must avoid war at the present moment under all circumstances, and the pusillanimous Government of England would not in a woman attorney has appeared in an important case in Kentucky. fight to avert any change in the map of Europe.

All these considerations arise from the almost bloodless mutiny of 20,000 troops on the shores of the Bosporus last Tues-

Prime Minister Asquith said to-day that the new Turkish Cabinet had assured the young man. England that it means to adhere strictly to the Constitution. Great Britain re plied: "We note the assurance with cordia satisfaction. Our only desire is to see the Turkish Government carry out a policy of reform and good government."

President Taft, however, en couraged the nmotorists by riding in one of the White House touring cars. Mrs. Taft occupied the seat beside him and they passed twice over the length of the speedway.

The fashionable parade passed in a double line of vehicles moving in opposite directions. HAVANA CRIMINAL WAVE.

The Arnaute Brothers Caught-New Police Force—Causes of Outbreak.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.
HAVANA, April 17.—Ricardo Arnauto and his brother, who are under indictment for robbing a valise belonging to Felipe Cisneros, now under arrest for attempting to kill ex-Gov. Nunez, of private papers compromising Nunez, were captured today and lodged in jail, bail being refused. Ricardo Arnauto has been the actual head of the secret police, and it was while acting in that capacity that he obtained the papers in question. The Secretaries of Justice and Government, the commander of the Rural Guard and the chiefs of the municipal and secret police held a lengthy meeting this morning to discuss the epidemic of crime now prevailing and the utter disorganization of the police forces. It was decided to increase the Havana police by a hundred men and to detail 125 rurales to assist in maintaining order in the outlying wards. It was also decided to create a new special judicial police force which will be at the orders of the judges.

The prevalence of crime is attributable equally to the recent amnesty decree which released a large number of criminals and to the substitution of political henchmen for experienced police officers.

SYMPATHY FOR CASTRO. Panama Papers Grind at France and the U. S .- Peace in Colombia.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.
PANAMA, April 17.—The local and southrn newspapers severely criticise President Fallières of France for the orders issued and "outrageous proceedings" taken against Cipriano Castro, the deposed President of Venezuela, declaring that they violate individual rights, which France was the first country to declare gloriously and which now, duped by the United States, she has forfeited.

The papers are unanimous in their declarations of sympathy for Castro. It is the general belief in South and Central American countries, according to the newspapers here, that if the unjust and coercive policy of the UnitedStates against independent sovereignty and autonomy is allowed to continue without protest the precedent may have serious results.

A Colombian, who is acting as a confl dential agent, here, has received an official cable despatch from President Reyes stating that the rumors of a revolution on the Venezuelan frontier are unfounded. The despatch adds that complete peace reigns and that the legal elections for members of Congress on July 20 will be peaceable.

HE opinion of a few individual retailers is not always a safe guide for a manufacturer to follow. But when the opinion comes from the largest and most successful houses in the trade, representing all sections of the country, then the verdict may be accepted as conclusive.

Since the first of the year, New York has been visited by an unusually large number of pianodealers. They were allanxious to see the new Weber Grand Pianola Piano, an instrument which the trade has eagerly awaited for a long time.

One dealer voiced the general opinion, when he said:

"I am amazed to see that you have so successfully incorporated the Pianola in the Grand Piano. I don't believe that you have ever produced anything that will give this industry such a tremendous impetus.

"When you first incorporated the Pianola in the Upright Piano, you announced it? as the most revolutionary factor the piano business had ever seen. We all know how promptly and wonderfully that prediction was realized.

"Now in this Grand Pianola Piano you have another instrument destined to still further revolutionize former conditions. Almost any prophecy that you care to make, is bound to come true. Anybody who can afford a Grand Piano at all, will surely want it in this best of all forms. There is absolutely no limit to its future."

APPENDICITIS. You may pronounce it "Appende-cye-tis" or "Appendee-ce-tis," but doctors pronounce it "dangerous." Its cause—a bit of undigested food or a speck of hard matter which has found its way into the vermiform appendix and has set up an inflammation. The result-excruciating pain, high fever, and sometimes death. Is it not logical that a clean intestinal tract, a perfect acting liver and stomach a healthy digestion will do much to prevent appendicitis?

will keep your bowels regular, you
